Project Description

The Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) seeks to improve the quality of life of Native American citizens by providing services to the 567 federally recognized tribes within the U.S. The BIA's Youth Programs Office looks to further the BIA's mission by developing a comprehensive database of resources and opportunities available to Native American youth, and utilize a communication strategy through social media to increase awareness of such resources. These opportunities may include but are not limited to: scholarships, leadership development programs, camps, contests, internships, fellowships, and other employment opportunities of interest. Interns will be responsible for compiling existing resources and new opportunities into one central document, while updating the database with additional opportunities as they become known. Interns will also work to increase accessibility to information within the database by drafting social media posts with information on how to pursue featured opportunities. This communications strategy may include collaboration with national Native American youth-focused organizations and groups. Interns will have the opportunity to improve writing, research and social media management skills in addition to providing a service to underserved Native American youth.
